

Libby Ames is an elementary teacher of 25 years. She came to Burnt island for the first time in 2008 on her daughter's field trip, and fell immediately in love with the island, and the incredible educational opportunities available . She knew then that she would always want this Burnt Island to be a part of her life, and so she became involved through teacher courses, volunteering at the Maine State Aquarium, and bringing her own classes on overnight field trips.